What do the assessment results mean for my child?

The assessment results provide information about your child's performance in reading, writing, and mathematics. These results are used by teachers, together with classroom assessment information, to inform instructional decisions that are best suited to your child.

Where can I get more information about this assessment?

Please visit the Program of Learning Assessment for Nova Scotia website: plans.EDnet.ns.ca.

How can I help my child prepare for this assessment?

No special preparation is necessary. A positive, relaxed attitude will help your child do his or her best. What your child has been learning in school has been preparing him or her for the assessment.
